The Women Can Do Much

NOW BEING HELD IN VANCOUVER IS the Fourth Triennial Conference of the Pan-Pacific Women's Association. At the gathering are delegates from many countries. There is a mixture of race, color, and

One of the chief subjects of discussion at this conference, as we understand it, is peace and what contribution women may make toward attaining a saner conduct of international affairs.

If the women of the world will get after this business of preventing war they can do it. The women go through various forms of torture to provide cannon fodder. Why should a woman, no matter of what nationality, bring a boy into the world with the fear in the back of her mind that one day, progress. perhaps, in his late 'teens, he may be compoison gas, and all the rest of the diabolical form of slaughter, as a sequel to international intrigue about which he knows

Why should nations be permitted to rake the brains of their scientists and urge them to "beat the other fellow" in the production of contrivances that will rain death and de struction on helpless women and children to destroy the country-side, the hamlet, the village, the town, the city-all to satisfy the greed of the armament manufacturer and

We say, if the women of the world will draw upon their courage to such an extent as to tell the governments of the world they will not permit this sort of thing any more, there will be no more war. Why not a worldwide women's strike against war?

There is nothing silly about a suggestion of this kind. It is merely a suggestion of at least one way to save civilization. And, we, or do we not, want to save civilization? Another major war, of course, would completely wreck it.

However, the women in session in Vanouver are doing a noble job of work, and, whether they are holding some of their ses-sions on this vital topic behind closed doors, or not, we may be sure something tangible will emerge.

B.C.'s Good Business

ACCORDING TO LATEST REPORTS, the primary industries of British Columbia have done as much business in the first six months of this year as they did in the whole of the year 1932, for, from January to June, inclusive, the total value may exceed $100,000,000. At this rate, the year's for the next 10 years. turnover should be worth in value well over

Without going into statistical detail, the figures set out above indicate that this allround improvement in the production from the forests, the mines, the farms, and from the fishery industry has been the most important factor in the reduction of unemployment in British Columbia. It has meant that more workers have been able to obtain gainful employment, that it has been possible to reduce the cost of relief. But it should not be forgotten that we are not out of the Premier Pattullo would be the last to claim that the policies of his government since 1933 have been wholly responsible for this improvement in the condition of British ia's primary industries; but he need make no apologies for the credit he claimed for his contribution to this very much better bility that it should be a shall state of affairs when he asked the electors recently to say whether or not they approved the manner in which he had conducted their business. The verdict at the polls was a convincing answer.

Columbia is a province of vast resources. All of us know that. What is now wanted is a policy that will mean the sale of these resources in the home (Dominion) market and in the markets of the world. Trade policies with this end in view, we hope, will early engage the attention of the newly-endorsed government.

Ready, Aye, Ready!

of British defence, has assured the British public that Britain is ready to meet every eventuality.

Vast reserves of oil fuel have been accumulated. The air defence programme is going ahead more satisfactorily and all the 124 new air squadrons will be formed by the end of July. The British Navy is ready for any task. Raw materials and food supplies are being steadily accumulated.

If war should break out the British government will keep skilled men in industry peare Memorial Theatre. Then there is the and will not attempt to take them out of the Severn, the Dee, and, what of the Thamesworkshops to fill the gaps in the fighting the view from the top of Richmond Hill forces. The unskilled will have to hold the over that landscape which encloses in its trenches. To be at peace with dictator-ridden arms that little village church in which the

Futility Versus Hunger

LEAVE IT TO THE SCIENTIST TO TRY to make the blood curdle in our veins One well-known commentator tells us that tists-he also may have added the pseudo scientists—can always be relied upon to supply a substitute: "something that sounds like news, because it is terrifying or queer or merely comic." He lets himself go this way:

There is always a semi-scientific congress going on somewhere—generally in the United States.

Whence, for example, comes the latest; which is that blonde women drive dangerously at night. For optical reasons. It isn't their hair, which may be artificial. It's their eyes. Beware of which may lead to uproar in offices in the heat. And beware of thunderstorms. And beware of eating and drinking, and sitting or standing still.

We intend, in addition, to beware of science, which has a nasty way of inventing dangers and then telling us to avoid

It is natural to presume that the commen tator we have quoted had no intention of un derestimating the fine contribution which scientists continue to make to the welfare of human progress-if, at times, they do "discover" things which may retard that

Gazing at the stars, flying up into the pelled by a medieval form of government to go out and expose himself to the bullets, the find hidden treasure—expenditures of such vast sums-this is what makes men and comen with families who are hungry wonder what it is all about.

Report From North Europe

GERMANY IS GROWING APPREHENsive of the political attitude of the Scandinavian countries. During the Great War their sympathies inclined towards Germany. But lately Germany has been observing the increased influence of Great Britain in the politics and economics of northern Europe.

During the Great War Sweden, Holland and Denmark freely exported foodstuffs and live material to Germany, notwithstanding the impediments put on their imports by the Allies and the United States. Germany suspects that the present move, sponsored by Great Britain, for the formation of a Baltic Scandinavian bloc, is a mere facade behind which an anti-German party is in steady

The Propaganda Minister, Goebbels, handles the question with truculence. He wants to know, should another world war break out, if the Scandinavian countries as long as his arm, would once more adopt a policy whereby they would become the stage on which the belligerents would again have to struggle for supplies of raw materials and foodstuffs.

Herr Stauning, the Danish Prime Minister is said to have informed London and assured Berlin that in the event of a European conflict Denmark would remain neutral and sell freely to all countries. This means selling mostly to Germany. But Germany is not quite sure of the attitude of Norway and Sweden. Berlin learns that Britain has bought up the entire Swedish coal output

The Scandinavian countries seem to welcome the intensified activity of Great Britain in northern Europe. There was a time in the early days of the Nazi ascension to power when the Scandinavian countries were apprehensive of their freedom. Now the entrance of the British into a Baltic bloc, even if at present it is not concrete, assures the Scandinavians of their freedom from German or Russian dominance

On the German side the changed attitude of the Scandinavian countries from being sympathetic towards Germany to amity towards Britain is looked upon as a grave loss to Germany's war-making possibi

oose Ends

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

THE CLAMOR of several hundred Ger mans making a job of beer drinking is something like a storm at sea, but unfortunately it wasn't quite loud enough to drown the band. We managed to get two seats near the band and could study its technique in detail. The band, five large, perspiring musicians in Tyrol costume, had long ago stopped trying to make music and now sought only to make sound, which seemed to satisfy everyone. Faint blarges eemed to satisfy everyone. Faint blares the destructive rodents is directly ame out of the mighty brass horns and a attributed to the excessive trap deep rumble of thunder from the drum, but there was no connection between these sounds. There could hardly be, since the horn blowers and the drummer kept pausing in the middle of the piece to lift a stein of beer to their parched mouths.

A stein of beer in Munchen is an object formidable and appalling. It is just over a foot high, about five inches in diameter, and must hold well over a quart and a half. Waiters in Tyrol costumes and enormous white feathers in their hats—old men, stout and dripping wet from their labors—slung the steins about with remarkable dexterity, the steins about with remarkable desternly, like seasoned jugglers, each stein foaming to over with the light amber and the rich dark brown beer of Munchen, the best in the world, one of the finest products of Teuvive the onslaughts of weasels in side us a lean peasant from the moun tains addressed himself seriously to a wurst of a variety I had not seen before. It was a white sausage, naked and obscene looking, and he slit it down the side slowly and caresurgeon might remove an appendix. After he had operated on six of them, removing all the contents, he started to eat, looking neither to the right nor to the left until he had finished. Then he drained off a quart of beer at one swallow, out of a stein nearly

My American friend, who had come over on the Queen Mary, said the beer consumed in this single garden in one night would be ample to float that vessel, with sufficient over for a small flotilla of destroyers.

FAMILY SCENE

AT THE table next to us a fine old German A and his plump wife, solemnly drained two of these steins each, sipping the last and ordered two more. was given a small glass of beer, about three times the size of those used in Canadian beer parlors, but he couldn't quite drink it all. The elder son of the family and his girl sat together at the parents' table in each all. other's arms, occasionally kissing, at which the old gentleman and his wife grinned over their steins.

GARLIC

BEHIND us, in the alley beside the platform, half a dozen girls were kept busy supplying garlic sandwiches to the crowd.
With German efficiency they peeled the vegetables on queer little machines which, when the crank was turned, cut long white ribbons of garlic. This, clapped between two hunks of bread, is a highly-esteemed Mun-chen delicacy. Near by, brawny men, stripped to the waist, pushed more barrels of beer up the alley, and the sound of the empties being rolled out over the cobble-stones was like thunder. But the singing of the beer drinkers, and the blare of the band

Apparently it is a matter of honor in Munchen to drain your stein. Near us 10 youngsters were sitting about a table, all singing and waving their steins in time with their song. I saw one of them look about quickly to make sure he wasn't observed, and pour the contents of his stein into the alley. Then he went on singing as before, main streets of Munchen small boys in Nazi uniforms were marching in thousands, with banners and songs and Fas-cist swastikas on the arms of their shirts. Gravely soldiers and pedestrians paused to salute them with outstretched arms. This was the Germany of Hitler. In the beer garden we were in the pro-Hitler Germany. It was noisier but jollier.

TEA WITH HITLER

From Fort William Times-Journal

It was not a bad idea on the part of Premier Mackenzie King of Canada to seize the opportunity of paying an unofficial call upon Adolf Hitler, while he was in Berlin, if only in order to get some personal knowledge of the man upon whom the peace of the world so largely depends.

Mackenzie King is neither undiplomatic nor foolish. The suggestion that he should take a cup of tea with Hitler was probably talked over before he went. It was not a the job of interpreting the Empire for the benefit of the German Fuehrer.

From The Calgary Herald There seems at first sight little nnection between this season's crease in the number of gophers and a Coronation in far-away

Yet, according to the secretary of the Pine Lake municipality, the present additional influx of ping of weasles during the pas winter. In turn, higher prices fo the sable tail tips, was due to the demand for ermine which the fashions of the Coronation cele-

Meanwhile the gophers, relieved of the presence of preda-tors which acted as a natural curb on too rapid an increase in their numbers, came through the winter with only a minimum of casualties among their ranks. They welcomed the spring with vive the onslaughts of weasels in normal years.

So serious has been the loss of weasels that the Pine Lake orities believe only by a closed season for weasels over a period of at least ten years can the menace of increasing gopher de-struction be averted, and the natural balance returned.

High fur prices encouraged the hunting of coyotes to a greater extent than most years—and the summer diet of coyotes includes any gophers. A S I was telling you last week, EMPRESS Brown Label TEA has exceptional "body"-its color is rich and deep and it brews to such a strength that the usual "one for the pot" is not necessary. Think of the saving this means for you-a saving of about one spoonful in every four! And remember, too, that the exquisite flavor of tender young tea tips blended into Empress Tea makes it so much more enjoyable than so-called "strong" tea . . . You'll like:

N.H.L. Governors Discuss Lack of Support For

Canadiens and Maroons

NEW YORK-The possibility Montreal will have only one major league hockey team when the snow flies next winter was seen yesterday when governors of the National Hockey League, at their regular midsummer meeting, appointed a committee of three to study the cause of the decline in patronage there and formulate a remedy.

For some seasons Canadiens and Maroons has suffered financially due to failure of fans to fill the Forum as was the custom some years back.

So pressing was the Montreal situation the governors placed it first on the agenda and discussed it throughout the meeting. The schedule for next season was submitted, but approval was not given as the magnates concen-trated on the Maroon-Canadien problem. Even the present status of the money-muddled New York Americans was ignored and the club's standing left unchanged.

COMMITTEE CHOSEN

Frank Calder, league president; Frank Calder, league president; James Norris Sr., owner of De-troit Redwings, and Col. John Reed Kilpatrick, president of Madison Square Garden and New Madison Square Garden and New York Rangers, were chosen to probe Montreal's attendance slump and granted "full powers to act on any plan they select to ameliorate the professional hockey situation in Montreal."

Authoritative sources said it was the general belief of the governors that Montreal lacks the population to support two clubs. However, a merger of the clubs will not be considered. Removal of one team, possibly to Cleve.

of one team, possibly to Cleve-land, St. Louis or Pittsburgh, was thought to be the likely solution. It was explained the governors felt the N.H.L. should retain its present eight-club membership.

Ernest Savard, owner of Cana diens, and Thomas Arnold of the Maroon directorate, outlined conditions in Montreal in detail.

Laugh Theme At Dominion

Victor Moore and Helen Broderick, the two comedy stars who contribute much mirth to "Swing Time," and were again teamed in the hilarious "We're on the Jury," bring their brilliant talents to a third side-splitting offering VANCOUVER AND TACOMA in RKO Radio's "Meet the Missus." It is coming to the Dominion Theatre tomorrow.

Dealing with the penchant of ousewives for entering national contests, the story is said to be a laugh-fest from start to finish, and to offer the two favorites their finest opportunities to dis-play the brand of fun that has made them famous on screen, stage and radio.

William Boyd Is Featured in

William Boyd comes to the screen for the eighth time as the romantic daredevil, "Hopfalong Cassidy," in "Trail Dust," latest in the Cassidy series which begins today at the Columbia Theatre.

It is Cassidy's job in "Trail Dust," or more than three centuries. It is Cassidy's job in "Trail Dust," to bring a herd of cattle through a drought ridden prairie to alleviate a famine. This is counter to the wishes of a group of unscrupulous cattle dealers, who plan to cash in on the drought by forcing up the price of beef. They throw every obstacle in his way, and almost prevent Cassidy from arriving at his destination.

William Boyd comes to the screen for the master of record, Shakes peare's work has been "stolen" for more than three centuries. Interesting sidelights on the master dramatist were uncovered during research for "Romeo and Juliet," now showing at the Atlas Theatre with Norma Shearer and Leslie Howard co-starred.

As a rule, ants are good, hard-As a rule, ants are good, hard-working citizens, taking care of their own business. They work together in bringing food for the supply of their colony. They give tender care to their young, and the adults in the colony seem to have a spirit of kindness and friendship for one another. That may be taken as the gen-eral fact. There are, however.

eral fact. There are, however, some kinds of ants which are robbers, kidnappers and slavemakers.

Let us take, for example, the

Let us take, for example, the red Amazon ants. They have the name of a river in Brazil, but they are natives of Europe, North America and Japan. The name seems to have been given them because they are like "a race of warrior women" called the Amazons in old Greek stories.

The Amazon ants make raids on nests of other ants. Certain black ants often are their vic-tims. Here is an account of one of the raids:

At 4 in the afternoon, an army of red Amazons left its home colony. It contained several hundred soldiers. Each was armed with sharp-edged, pinching jaws, which closed with a sidewise motion and which could be compared to a pair of ice tongs. The body of each ant was about half an inch long.

It was a summer afternoon corner of a cornfield. About 20 minutes later, the Amazons reached a colony of black ants.

Down into the nest of the black ants rushed the Amazons. Some of the blacks must have fought against the Amazons, but suffered defeat.

In a few minutes, red ants began to come out of the nest, each carrying a cocoon! The object of the raid had been to steal the cocoons of the blacks!

Homeward marched the Amazons, and when they reached their nests, they left the cocoons there.

That is only one of hundreds of raids which have been watched with care. Photographs have been made of the fighting, and of red ants marching away with the

The ice-tong jaws of Amazon ants explain why they make raids their jaws are not fitted for obtaining food in the ordinary way of ants. The cocoons they capture hatch into black slave ants. The slave ants gather food to eat. Much better food than I had in any of the boarding houses where I stayed before I was married. We don't get tired of looking at each other. We go places and do things, but we find that we enjoy staying at home more than anything else. We haven't gone shabby and we haven't had to ask each other how are we going to pay the rent or stave off the grocer. Maybe we did get married on a shoestring and took a long shot at happiness, but if we had waited until all the risk of a financial flop was over we would have been both in our graves before the minister could have united us. We have proven to ourselves that any one who is healthy and has the determination can marry on $15 a week and make a go of it.

Answer: I am glad to publish this heartening letter that shows where there is a will there is a way of making a success of marriage, even if there is very little money in the pocketbook, and the cupboard isn't stocked with filet mignon and truffles. After all, this young couple who started out poor in money but rich in love and courage did only what most of our fathers and mothers and grandparents did.

Most of them also married on a shoestring and went to live in

Most of them also married on a shoestring and went to live in couple of rooms or a small cottage. The wife did the housework and they were cheap clothes, spent their evening at home and never thought of such a thing as belonging to clubs or giving cocktail parties or having a horse and buggy or taking trips. And neither did they have any divorces. They got along together, were happy, and comfortable, raised up nice families, and, working together, many of them made fortunes. People then didn't wait to have a competence to get married, and they didn't expect their parents to support them after they got married. They expected to stand on their own feet and meet their own responsibilities.

Young people could marry now, as you have proven, on just as little money as their parents did if they were willing to live the same way, but they are not. It isn't that times are different. It is that boys and girls are different. They are not willing to do the work and make the sacrifices that their parents did in

That is why it isn't safe now for a girl and boy to marry on nothing but love. Their love doesn't last when they have to do with-out a car and the beauty shop and wear poor clothes and are not able to go to places of amusement. They quarrel. They reproach each other for the hardships they have to endure. And before long the girl has gone back home to mother, or off with some man who is making more money than her husband. And the boy is playing around with his old friends and another marriage is on the rocks.

It takes character, grit, determination and common sense to make a go of a marriage on a small income, and too many of the young people of today lack these qualities. They are too soft. They can't take it.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—Six years ago when my father died I was adopted by a family who have been kindness itself to me and to whom I owe much. Now a situation in the family has arisen that puzzles me about what I should do. About two weeks ago the oldest son, a boy of 17, married a girl of 18. He hasn't finished school out is working for his father who is very well off. The girl has been reared on a farm and has little education. The boy doesn't make enough to support a wife and they are keeping their marriage a secret. What should I do? Should I tell the parents about it?

ADOPTED SISTER

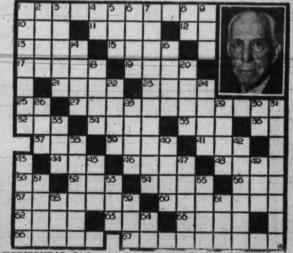

Of course you don't want to be a talebearer, but it is important that the father should know what the son has done in order to straighten out the situation and prevent scandal, so I think you should tell him. The secret can't be kept long. It is bound to come out and then your foster-father may think that you connived at the marriage or were responsible for it in some way, and that if you had told him what you knew at the time he might have prevented it. might have prevented it.

Your slience will seem a poor return to him for his kindness to you and, at any rate, no good is being accomplished by keeping the marriage a secret.
